EDITO

While terrorism continues to rage across Europe, the Mediterranean and Africa, our thoughts go to all those innocent victims and their families. More than ever our work for an inclusive development supported by the private sector in the Mediterranean is necessary to offer opportunities to the youth who drops out of society and join criminal organisations.

With the EDILE initiative, we established a cluster of Euro-Mediterranean businesses that contribute to local development. We now wish to invite companies who share these values to grow this business and inclusive investors' community. The more we will be, the more we will weigh for making private sector social and territorial commitments recognised and rewarded.

Encouraged by the broad support they already received, SOS Mediterranean has committed to continue its rescue campaign until December 2016. We invite you to continue supporting them to make this objective possible.
