

MEDITERRANEAN: ANIMA, 'DIPLOMATIE' SEEK DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS

ANSAméd

BRUSSELS, MARCH 26 - Anima Investment Network (the multi-country platform for economic development of the Mediterranean) and 'Diplomatie' (the French bimonthly magazine dedicated to international relations) have launched a competition for projects dedicated to the Mediterranean. The competition is open for people and teams with projects of transversal application (that concern at least several countries, from the north and the south of the Mediterranean) and have a significant economic impact on the sustainable development of the region. The projects must be presented by April 30, 2008 at the latest. A selection of the 25 best projects will be published in a special issue of the Enjeux Méditerranée journal. The projects must concern the population in general and its living conditions, transport, housing, health, medias, environment. Regional integration must be the objective of each project.

<http://www.ansamed.info/en/news/ME02.@AM19291.html>